PAGANI CODALUNGA

No Pagani is ordinary, but with a production run of five and a price of more than £6 million the Codalunga is an exotic example of an already rarefied breed. Springing from the Huayra supercar, the Codalunga was inspired by two Pagani customers. They wanted a longer car, with a simpler styling them inspired by Le Mans racers of the 1960s and 1970s. But with modern technology and handling. A true bedroom-wall poster made real.

BENTLEY MULLINER BACALAR

During the early years of Bentley, the company, along with third-party coachbuilders, made many coachbuilt specials with unique and exotic bodywork. The Mulliner Bacalar (Mulliner being one of those original coachbuilders) follows in those footsteps. It might be 'just' a regular Bentley Continental GT underneath, but with beautifully crafted bodywork and 641bhp from its glorious W12 engine, this is a very special car indeed.

LAMBORGHINI REVUELTO

Hybrids are boring, so they say. Well 'they' clearly haven't tried a Lamborghini Revuelto. While three electric motors boost performance and fuel efficiency in Lamborghini's latest wild creation (and deliver extra grip and traction in the form of foru-wheel drive), the screaming 6.5-litre V12 adds emptoion and excitement, delivering a spine-tingling soundtrack to accompany the Italian supercar's rapid progress down the road.

BRABUS ROCKET 1000

If the standard 831bhp from the Mercedes AMG GT 63 S E Performance simply isn't enough for you, famed Mercedes tuner Brabus has the answer. It's called the Rocket 1000. Rocket because, well, it's darned quick, and '1000' because it's the first time Brabus has nailed the 1000 horsepower mark for one of its cars. And although that actually translates to 'only' 986bhp as per our spec sheet, it's still one heck of an achievement.

FERRARI SF90 XX STRADALE

The aggressive-looking SF90 XX is Ferrari's fastest road-legal car and is quite possibly unbeatable as a way to drive to a race track, get round it faster than many racing cars would, then drive home again. In fact, it's also the first of Ferrari's 'XX'-branded cars to be road legal at all. If you want a 1,000-horsepower racing car that you can also take down to the shops, there's little around to beat one of these.

ASTON MARTIN VANQUISH

For such a massive sports car, it's almost a surprise that the Aston Martin Vanquish is only a two-seater – and it's a shame that the sense of occasion this car generates can't be shared by more than a pair of people. Still, the excitement and drama this car generates with its flamboyant styling and snorting V12 engine goes way beyond the car's cockpit – the Aston Martin Vanquish is a true head-turner wherever it goes.
